As a business owner, what happens to my business if I die?

At some point every successful business owner will have to ask themselves "What will happen to my business if I die while I am still working?" Although this is a question most of us would prefer to avoid, addressing this issue now will insurer the continuation of the business long after the death of the owner.

There are essentially four (4) main areas of concern upon the death of a business owner.

Loss Prevention Tips for Repair Garages

Establish, post and strictly enforce a rule forbidding customers from entering the service bay area. By establishing a clean, safe waiting area for customers, you will significantly reduce the possibility of "slip and fall" type losses. Added benefit is that customers will not disturb your mechanics while they are working on vehicles.
